An election we cannot afford to lose: Gray Davis for governor

November is fast approaching, and with it comes the election of our governor. In past issues of Engineers News we've highlighted the good work Gov. Gray Davis has done for labor, and we've asked for your support in his bid for re-election. Now is the time to reiterate how crucial that support is for our future as union members in California; should Gov. Davis lose, his opponent would stick the next four years a living nightmare for labor. This is an election we can't afford to lose.

Revisiting the past of Gov. Davis

As I've said before, Local 3 endorses Gov. Davis because of his long history of supporting labor. In his four years as governor, Davis has dedicated himself to the causes of working families. He's kept his promises to us and continues to support us. He's the clear choice for union members, and I believe his record proves why. Since he took office in 1999, Davis has restored daily overtime and workplace flexibility, strengthened measures that ensure workplace safety and health enforcement, increased funding for labor law enforcement, and approved legislation that allows parents to use sick leave to care for an ailing child, parent or spouse.

Just recently, Davis announced completion of the largest power plant expansion in 25 years. This addition of more than 1,000 megawatts to Duke Energy's Moss Landing facility will power 2 million homes and will play a significant role in alleviating the power crisis.

Other accomplishments are also worth revisiting. In the past four years, Davis has:

- Expanded overtime. The Industrial Welfare Commission, whose members are appointed by the governor to reflect the interests of the public, labor and business, extended overtime to hundreds of thousands of workers in California who never before received it. Overtime was extended to the construction, drilling, logging and mining industries.
- Raised the state's minimum wage. Davis signed an increase from $5.75 an hour to $6.25. An additional $0.50 increase was approved Jan. 1.
- Increased workers' compensation benefits. In February, Davis signed bill AB 749, increasing compensation benefits for workers. The increase will add about $1 billion (7 percent) in benefit costs next year, rising to $3.45 billion a year (22.7 percent) by 2006. The increase in costs will be offset by structural reforms.
- Strengthened labor law enforcement. Davis signed legislation strengthening labor law enforcement and increasing penalties for employers who do not pay wages to their workers, and approved a measure that strengthens employment protections for people with disabilities.
- Approved binding arbitration. Davis approved a binding arbitration process for firefighters and law enforcement employees that preserves the rights of these employees while offering consistent protection of the public.
- Bettered workplace safety. The governor approved increases in funding for Cal-Osha to improve workplace safety, targeting employers with the highest proportion of fatalities, injuries, illnesses and workers' compensation losses.
- Upgraded young worker safety. The governor approved a statewide young worker health and safety resource network that will increase the ability of young workers and their communities to identify and address workplace hazards for protecting young workers from on-the-job injuries and illnesses.

Local 3 OEFCU now offers insurance services

By Don Doser, Business Manager

As business manager of Local 3, I continually strive to bring valuable services to our members. To do this I constantly work with our providers to ensure up-to-date services as the union evolves and as members' needs change.

I recently asked the management of the Operating Engineers Local 3 Federal Credit Union (OEFCU) to provide insurance services that match your needs.

Efforts made by OEFCU management have been realized, and I am now proud to announce the availability of insurance services in California, Nevada and Oregon. Other states will soon be included in the coverage as well.

The new insurance services allow you to shop for insurance intelligently. You now can avoid dealing with insurance agents and brokers who try to sell you policies that may not be in your best interest, and instead deal with people who want to work with and for your needs.

High premiums and inadequate coverage often result from insurance that was set up without having the right questions asked by the consumer or the insurance agent. We designed OEFCU's insurance services so that the information you need to communicate your requirements is readily available and so your needs are heard loud and clear. You now have a resource enabling you to obtain the best coverage available with no pressure.

The insurance services OEFCU provides include no-obligation research of several well-established and reputable insurance providers by experienced staff. Staff members will report their findings back to you, discuss the coverage that successfully meets your particular needs, and then advise you on the best way to proceed. Several providers are represented, so there is no need to sign up for anything that does not exactly meet your needs.

To access these insurance services you can call (800) 700-7474. This toll-free number is available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. I encourage you to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss and address your insurance needs. There is no fee for these services, and the time you spend will be a wise investment.

Talking Points

One year later

Remember the fallen, celebrate the heroes

A year ago our nation suffered a painful loss; we now face that loss every day. But while the Sept. 11 tragedy ruthlessly seized the lives of thousands of Americans, it also made our nation stronger, bringing out the best in us, bringing us together in the pursuit of justice, peace and recovery. Millions of Americans came together, ignoring past differences or disputes, to mourn the loss of their fellow brothers and sisters and to celebrate the lives and prosperity they once took for granted.

As we contemplate the horror the hands of terrorism inflicted upon America, it is important that we take time to recognize the heroes who selflessly sacrificed their time to help get our nation back on its feet. Millions fused energy and concern, tirelessly working to help the nation recover, and many were our brothers and sisters, Operating Engineers.

Thomas Maguire, business manager of Local Union 15, said in an interview last year that Local 3 was the first to call and offer assistance. "The Operating Engineers in New York will never forget the brotherhood and character that Local 3 showed."

At least five Operating Engineers died during the rescue efforts in New York. At California's Day of Remembrance on Oct. 9, 2001, Business Manager Don Doser said, "Operating Engineers who died that day showed all of us the true colors of their work ethic: Those colors are red, white and blue."

Last year Doser said, "Over the past 43 years, my respect for working men and women has grown, but it has never been greater than it is right now."

Doser was exactly right and that is what we must remember today. We must not let the tragic outcome of the Sept. 11 attacks overwhelm us; we instead should recognize the positive outcomes, pay our respects to our brothers and sisters who died in the tragedy and honor those who made sacrifices to aid in rescue and clean-up efforts.

Some good did come from the Sept. 11 tragedies, we all came together as Americans and remembered what our strong nation is all about. As the one year anniversary arrives, we must remain strong and not lose sight of what united us then and should still unite us now — our pride, loyalty and solidarity.
A man of honor; a humble hero

Thirty-four year member exhibits a lifetime of accomplishment

By Kelly Preiser, Associate Editor

When Engineers News was contacted early this spring with the idea that a 34-year member’s life would make for an interesting story, it was given considerably more than a step in the right direction.

Although very humble, John Cogdell, Jr. is a remarkable man who has done more good in his career than most can boast in a lifetime.

As a Local 3 member since 1968, Cogdell trained to be the best and quickly learned the importance of working with others and being there to help those in need. Besides being an Operating Engineer, he owned his own business for 12 years, wrote a novel titled Double Standards, and served as a volunteer fireman, a private investigator, deputy sheriff, chief of police, city marshal, and as a deputy constable. During his tenure he did more than serve the public, he actually saved lives.

"John did a good job in law enforcement," John’s wife Martha Cogdell said. "He dealt with a lot of life and death situations. It just made everything seem bigger and more real."

When Cogdell worked as a deputy sheriff in 1983, he helped deliver a baby girl when a young woman, in labor three months prematurely, showed up at the county jail with her husband. Cogdell rode with the couple to the hospital and helped deliver the baby en-route. The baby, Michelle, was only 4 pounds, 1 ounce at birth. Michelle is now healthy at 18 years old, and just graduated from high school.

"It felt good to save that little girl’s life and to have helped her mother," Cogdell said. "We still keep in touch. She just graduated high school and still sends us pictures."

"It feels good to help anyone in trouble," he added.

And he should rightly know — Michelle was not the only person he saved. One Halloween night when Cogdell was on patrol in Mineral Springs Arkansas as city marshall, he saved another little girl’s life. The 7-year-old girl and her mother were on their way to visit relatives in Louisiana when the girl began choking. Her mother then pulled off to the side of the road and tried to help her daughter but was unsuccessful. Cogdell then came around the corner and saw the woman waving for help.

"I was coming around the curve when I noticed this woman flagging me," Cogdell told a reporter from the local paper that night. "When I got to the car, the girl had already begun to turn blue in the face."
Cogdell gave the girl the Heimlich maneuver and saved her life. "In a few minutes she was back to normal," he said.

Cogdell remained a member in good standing with Operating Engineers while he worked in law enforcement and presently works as an operator for W.M. Lyles in Salida. Not long ago, he saved yet another life. On his way home from a job with W.M. Lyles in Piedra, Calif., he was driving down Friant Road when he came across two burning cars that hit head-on in a high-speed crash. There were four people trapped inside the fiery, mangled cars. Cogdell reacted instantly and hooked a 20-foot chain to his pick-up truck and separated the two cars. Three people died in the accident, but Cogdell was able to help save one 19-year-old boy's life.

"I feel like I was intended to be there," Cogdell said. "For some reason I think I was meant to be there."

Extraordinary as Cogdell's accomplishments are, he said his proudest moments were the births of his three sons: John, now age 39, Billy, 37, and Adam, 25. Cogdell also said that what he is most proud of in his life now are his three sons. Two are in law enforcement and one works for a local college.

Cogdell's experience as an Operating Engineer has been a very positive aspect in his life as well.

"The people you get to work with are great," he said. "I've made some good friends with Local 3."

Cogdell said that he learns something new each day in his life and gains something from each new experience.

"Everything you do helps you in the next thing you do," he said. "Anything you learn today will help you in the future."

Martha Cogdell compared the work that Operating Engineers do to the work of law enforcement, saying that something good comes from both.

"What you do portrays who you are, and if something good comes from it, it creates another horizon, something to look forward to," she said. "It lets you know there's a future, and what these people do makes a future."

John and Martha Cogdell celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary in July.

"It's been a good ride," Martha Cogdell said about her life with John. "Life always has something going, and we look forward to the future."
Local 3 introduces a new wellness program

In January 2001 the Boards of Trustees for the Operating Engineers Health & Welfare Trust Fund and the Pensioned Operating Engineers Health & Welfare Trust Fund announced a new wellness program. TrueNorth Health, formerly known as The Center For Conservative Therapy, is a residential health care program in Penngrove, Calif. The Trust Fund will cover this program of nutritional medicine for the employees and spouses who have diabetes and/or high blood pressure, and who want to better manage their illness through improved diet and lifestyle. It is a drug-free, medically-supervised inpatient program lasting about three weeks that consists of intensive instruction in diet and lifestyle modification, and when appropriate, a period of medically-supervised fasting. To qualify for coverage of this program, you must meet specific criteria regarding your diabetes or high blood pressure readings, and you will need to have your doctor sign a referral form. If you are interested in this program, please call the Trust Fund Office or the Fringe Benefits Center for more information and a referral form.

The Trust Fund will cover up to three treatment programs for each eligible person. The first treatment program will be paid at 100 percent, the second at 85 percent and the third at 70 percent. The benefit will include laboratory services.

Eye exams are important for your children

It is essential to have your child's vision checked on a regular basis. Vision exams are important in identifying vision problems that could interfere with school performance. It is generally advised that children undergo a comprehensive vision test before entering school, followed by annual exams. National statistics show that sight disorders are the fourth most common disability and the most prevalent impeding condition in children. Of the 20 percent of school-age children who have a learning disability or high blood pressure readings, and you will need to have your doctor sign a referral form. If you are interested in this program, please call the Trust Fund Office or the Fringe Benefits Center for more information and a referral form.

Using medications incorrectly can raise risk

With 75 percent of Americans age 45 and older regularly using prescription drugs, drug misuse is becoming a serious public health problem. To reduce your risk of complications, follow these guidelines:

- Keep an up-to-date list of all prescription drugs you take, along with the name of the pharmacy.
- Keep your medications in their original containers with directions.
- Read the label before each prescription and before you take the drug.
- Ask your doctor to write the medication's purpose on any prescription.
- Keep your medications in their original containers with directions.
- Read the label before each prescription and before you take the drug.
- Don't chew or break pills unless instructed.

The high cost of denying workers the right to organize

Last month I discussed tactics employers use to deny workers the legal right to organize and bargain with their employers. Highly-paid “union-busting” consultants, unlawful firings, captive audience meetings, threats of workers losing their jobs if they choose a union, pro-union workers being “black-balled” — all of these things have become the norm for workers trying to organize.

Unfortunately, most Americans don’t realize that the consequences of failing to protect workers’ rights to organize go way beyond the loss of wages, benefits and a say on the job. It’s the opinion of Business Manager Don Doser and the officers of Local 3 that if this trend continues it will threaten the very underpinnings of our democracy. Illegally denying workers the right to organize is bad for Local 3 members, their families, their communities and our nation. Let me explain how we see it.

As American workers’ rights to organize are obstructed, their voices in the political process are silenced. This allows corporations to have an undue influence in the political and regulatory arena. A person does not have to look any further than the front page of today’s newspapers to see why this is bad for America. The newspapers are full of stories of corporate abuse against workers and investors. Would these terrible things happen if workers had stronger voices in the process? Having the ability to speak out against this abuse is central to maintaining our democracy. But there is more to this than workers’ participation in the political and regulatory processes. Let’s look at other facts that support why having workers organized is good for America.

Wages and incomes are higher in states where unions are strong than in states where unions are weak — for all workers, not just union members. In the states where unions are the strongest, average hourly earnings for all workers are almost 83 an hour higher than states where unions are weak. Annual pay is almost $7,000 a year higher, annual household income is almost $8,000 higher, and disposable income is $4,000 higher. This is for all workers, not just union members!

Denying workers the right to choose a union has contributed to a growing national crisis, declining medical insurance and pension coverage. In 1999 (the latest figures available) 73 percent of union members had health insurance benefits, compared with only 51 percent of non-union workers. Seventy percent of union workers had guaranteed or defined-benefit pensions, versus only 16 percent of non-union workers. With recent national declines in union membership, the number of uninsured workers and workers without pensions has increased. Is it any wonder?

Strong union states are better for all workers in other ways as well. The pay gap between women and men is smaller in states where unions are strong. Programs such as workers compensation and unemployment benefits are better in strong union states. A smaller percentage of workers lack medical insurance in strong union states. The rate of poverty is lower in strong union states, and by various measures, education is better, including the percentage of our youth who graduate from high school. Voter participation also is higher in states where unions are strong.

Under Doser’s leadership, Local 3 continues to aggressively organize throughout its six-state jurisdiction. The officers of Local 3 know that our continued ability to negotiate improvements in wages and benefits for our members depends on our ability to keep our membership strong. We must continue to increase our market share in every industry that employs Local 3 members. By doing this, we build a strong foundation for future improvements — improvements that will continue to raise the standard of living for Local 3 members and the communities they live in.

Local 3 members need to help spread the word about how anti-union employers and consultants hurt our country. Let your neighbors and friends know why everyone pays the price when employers deny workers their legal right to organize. Our nation pays the price through lower wages, fewer benefits, increased poverty, fewer educational opportunities and less civic participation. This poses a serious threat to maintaining our American democracy. This is the real story that unscrupulous employers and their sleazy “union-busting” consultants don’t want told. What they do hurts our country. The time has come for our nation to strengthen its organizing laws and tell employers to keep their hands off workers trying to organize. As every Local 3 member knows, organizing improves the lives of every worker and it is good for our democracy. Help get the word out, and help your nation!
Make your voice heard; make your vote count

By Kelly Preiser, Associate Editor and Garland Rosauro, Political Director

As union members in America, Operating Engineers have many issues and rights that must be addressed by our government. The only way to ensure that our needs are properly represented is to elect leaders who stand up for our rights. Legislators must work to improve the lives of working families and the conditions we face in our work environments.

With state and local elections approaching, we must take a closer look at the issues we face and make a point of going to the polls and electing those who best represent us. In a democratic society, we all have the chance to have our voices heard through our ballots. The vast majority of the world does not have a say in how their government is run and we must be grateful for, and take advantage of, this opportunity.

With a national leader like President George W. Bush who takes money away from working families, we need to do everything in our power to make sure we are represented at the state and local levels. We need to elect officials who will meet with union members to help define labor's up-and-coming legislative agenda and who our members can effectively communicate with about key issues and concerns. Some important issues we now face are: building support for the right to organize, having justice served in our communities and in the workplace, the availability of affordable prescription drugs, unemployment insurance, election reform and fiscal accountability.

The following officials are endorsed by Local 3's leaders and districts because they truly represent workers' rights. Now it's your turn to make your voice heard. Get to the polls and do everything possible to make sure the right leaders are elected. Solidarity is what holds our union together, and by banding together to make our rights realized, we really can make a difference.

Staying current: HAZMAT classes offered this fall

News from the Safety Training & Enforcement Division

As we approach another season of HAZMAT training, we want you to be aware of some changes affecting this department. First, Jay Bosley replaced Brian Bishop who moved back to Eureka to serve as the district representative. Second, we no longer will send individual notifications regarding the eight-hour refresher classes. And lastly, we will post the schedule of HAZMAT classes in the district offices as well as in Engineers News.

As we all know, you need a 40-hour credential and annual refreshers if you want to become or remain employable on a HAZMAT site. If 12 months have lapsed since you obtained the credential or the refresher, you are not in compliance with the regulations permitting you to be employed at the site. If more than 24 months lapse, the 40-hour training must be recompleted. Maintaining your personal responsibility, but to assist you in keeping your credentials current, the training schedule will be accessible through Engineers News and the districts.

40-hour classes

Rancho Murieta Training Center . . Dec. 16 - 20 7385 Murieta Dr. (916) 354-2029

Alameda Office, 242 South Loop Rd.  (916) 748-7446

HAZMAT training is essential to Business Manager Don Doser's disaster response program as part of his commitment to California Governor Gray Davis for Homeland Defense. Those who participate in this program must be current in all the critical skills of disaster response and emergency assistance.

Enrollment and registration

Individuals interested in the eight-hour classes need to contact their district offices. To enroll in one of the 40-hour classes, please call the Safety Training & Enforcement Division at (916) 354-2029.

Fees for the eight-hour classes are $50 for non-members, and no cost to members of Operating Engineers. The cost to attend the 40-hour class is $390 for sponsored members of Operating Engineers and $400 for non-members. Members on the out-of-work list may enroll at no charge.

CAT Planetary Transmission Control

For years, Caterpillar scrapers, dozers, loaders and off-highway trucks have used the planetary transmission to control the engine power to the rest of the drive train. Internally, planetary gear sets (generally two at a time) connect together to deliver the power to the output shaft of the transmission. These planetary gear sets are activated by multi-disc wet clutches packs. In turn, these clutch packs are engaged by pressured transmission oil. There is a complete hydraulic system that controls which planetary gear sets are engaged via the clutch packs. The combination of planetary gear sets engaged determine direction (forward/reverse) and which gear (first, second, etc.) is selected. The system is generally a low-pressure system, usually in the 350-psi range.

The hydraulic system directs the oil to the clutch packs either by manually operating the control valve, or by energizing an electric solenoid that opens a hydraulic valve and directs the oil. With the manual control, the operator moves the spool valve through mechanical linkage. With newer scrapers and off-highway trucks, an electric solenoid directs hydraulic oil to a vane cylinder that rotates the main control valve (pilot system) that would direct the oil to the clutch packs that engage the planetary gears and send the power to the transmission's output shaft.

On late-model equipment, electronic processors energize the solenoids. Some transmission controls have an individual solenoid for each clutch pack and bypass the intermediate directional control valve. John Deere has used a similar method for years.

Next month's question: How the heck does s/he cut so good? Does your oxy-acetylene torch cutting of steel need improvement?
Contract negotiations settled successfully

July was a busy month for rock, sand and gravel. Our three major contracts with Geneva Rock, Construction Products Company (CPC) and Fife Rock were up for negotiations. Local 3, with the help of Vice President Bob Miller and three excellent negotiation committees, settled with two of the three companies.

Ron McCleary, Ken Prescott and K-Leb Poulsen did an excellent job representing members in negotiations with CPC (Granite Construction). They ended up with several beneficial language changes, improved grievance procedures and wage and fringe increases totaling 80 cents in 2002, 75 cents in 2003 and 75 cents in 2004.

The Geneva Rock negotiation committee comprises John Everett, Dominique Spainhower and Bryon Bailey. These stewards did an excellent job representing Geneva's members in sand and gravel, maintenance construction and ready mix. With their persistence they were successful in getting the first allocation language in that agreement, improving grievance language, and getting wage and fringe increases of 80 cents in 2002, 75 cents in 2003, and 75 cents in 2004, along with several other important changes.

Fife Rock Products' contract is still outstanding because it was not ratified by the membership. The negotiating committee, made up of Roger Barela and Hal Higgs, is working hard to make sure members' issues are presented to the management team. We hope for contract ratification in the near future.

With sand and gravel negotiations almost complete, we can prepare for next year's construction agreement.

The negotiation committees thank Bob Miller for dedicating his time and talent to these negotiations. His presence and expertise had a positive impact on the final outcome of these negotiations.

Eureka starts an OE CAT program

Eureka is starting an OE CAT (Operating Engineers Community Action Team) program for the district. Members of the team will be called upon to assist with voter registration, phone banking, walking picket lines, precinct walks, and attending meetings, rallies and other events. We seek assistance for making phone calls to members, advising them of upcoming district meetings and events. OE CAT programs have taken off very effectively in other districts and we hope some of you will volunteer to help get Eureka's program off to a running start. Please contact the district office for more information or volunteer forms.

Business Manager Don Doser and Northern California's Apprenticeship Administrator Curtis Brooks are assisting Gov. Gray Davis' efforts to have the state prepared for emergencies and disasters like the Sept. 11 tragedies. They asked the districts to assist by designating employers with equipment and areas where emergency teams could assemble. Mercer Fraser and Granite in Eureka volunteered to assist in this area. We will look for other employers' assistance in the future. It does not do a lot of good to have the equipment setting without qualified operators, and that is what we are now looking for. Please contact the Eureka office and request the form so we know what equipment or services you can provide in case of an emergency or disaster. Advise if you are HAZMAT qualified. Special thanks to Dennie Reynolds, Dennis Reynolds and Monte McKenzie, our first volunteers.

Pictured above is 52-year member Ray Frederickson receiving his 50-year watch from Local 3 Vice President Bob Miller at the July 23 district meeting in Eureka. Frederickson was initiated in 1950 and was a member of Eureka's grievance committee. Later in the 1970s and 1980s, he was an Executive Board member from District 40. Frederickson operated cranes, dozers, loaders, graders and concrete pumps. His wife Joyce passed away three years ago; they had been married for 52 years. Frederickson has two daughters, Pam Smith and Lynnea Jones, and loves to hunt and fish. He spoke at the ceremony, expounding on the benefits Local 3 members receive. He told the membership that he remembered when nothing went into health, welfare or pension and how Local 3 has improved our lives with all the changes it has made over the past 52 years. He then cautioned us to not forget what we have and what we could lose.

The Eureka office expresses its deepest sympathies to the Sherman Heath family. Heath passed away on July 15 at the age of 81. He was an Honorary Member of Local 3.

Our sympathies also go out to Rocky LeRoy and family for their loss. Janice Arlene (Partout) LeRoy passed away July 18. Rocky and Janice would be married for 53 years this August.

CHANGE OF CREDIT UNION HOURS IN EUREKA

To better serve members in the area, Eureka's Credit Union branch is extending its hours on Wednesdays, its "late nite." On Wednesdays, instead of opening at 8:30 a.m., it now opens at 10 a.m. and stays open until 6:15 p.m. The Credit Union lunch hour is still from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. These extended hours should allow more members to take advantage of our Credit Union's benefits. The Credit Union office will stay on its current schedule the rest of the week, opening at 8:30 a.m. and closing at 4:45 p.m. with lunch from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.
FROM SACRAMENTO

A prosperous season for District 80

There were a number of members from Caltrans at our last district meeting in Sacramento. We really appreciate their attendance. The Caltrans members work very hard at keeping our highways, roadsides, landscapes and fences in good shape for all of us to enjoy. We thank them for all their hard work and participation.

Work is really starting to pick up. Teichert picked up work at Empire Ranch off East Bidwell. Western Engineering (a non-union company) is still there but can't compete with our signatory companies, so Teichert will move approximately 2.2 million yards of rock and dirt in the coming months. Teichert also works in Elk Grove and in the subdivisions of Poppy Hills, Arcadian and Shadow Brook. Teichert also will work in the downtown area doing numerous overhauls. Lund Construction works on a Broadstone Unit 3 project which works about 12 operators. Granite works on the final phases for the Watt Avenue extension. Teichert-Perkins works three shifts and estimates that 4 million tons of rock will be put on the ground. Ford Construction works hard at the Wastewater Treatment Plant off of Franklin Boulevard on a $12 million job. Navajo Pipelines also is there putting in pipe.

Foundation Construction, Albert Zayas Excavating and Schnabel Foundation crews are hard at work on the Calpers project in downtown Sacramento. Balfour Beatty Construction works at the $54 million Fairbarin Project near Sacramento State University. The 7th Street extension project just started and FCI Constructors is there starting the first phases. This is a two-year project that will connect 7th Street with Richards Boulevard. Herzog Construction and Azteca continue to work on the light rail project in various locations from Hazel Avenue to Power Inn Road. Benco and Azteca also are working on the light rail project in the Meadow Vista area.

We hope all members have a safe and productive year.

FROM ROHNERT PARK

Rohner Park stays busy in spite of slow start

As the work season heads into the later part of the year, District 10 finds all of its local contractors busy after a very slow start. This was mostly because of late rains, permits and funding.

Ghilotti Construction has about eight operators on private developments in the Sonoma Valley. Foreman Rich Derrico said the project should keep about six operators going for the next two to three months. The company also works on the underground and finish work on a 90-lot subdivision in Cloverdale. They also are finishing a small commercial job in Windsor.

In mid-July, North Bay Construction started a $3 million pond restoration job for the Sonoma County Water Agency. North Bay has about eight to 10 operators working on that project, and has a lot of finish work left on the River Rock Casino job in Alexander Valley.

Argonaut Constructors finished the site work in old downtown Windsor in late July. It now has started the site preparation and rough grading for a commercial business park on 8th Street in Sonoma.

Argonaut Constructors was low bidder at $568,500 on the water main replacement for the community of El Verano.

Ghilotti Brothers Construction, based in San Rafael, began construction on a private reservoir for Ferro-Cerrano in Geyserville. It hired four operators by mid-July from the out-of-work list, and had seven operators working total.

Taylor-Bailey Construction in St. Helena had some hands working on a private reservoir off of Callistoga Road. General Superintendent Jerry Eastman reported that the company had two to three private jobs on the book and were waiting for the final permitting.

In the northern part of the district, Granite Construction works on the Hwy. 101 Caltrans project near Hopland. The majority of the dirt was hauled off by the beginning of August. The bridge at Pietta Creek was completed and the approaches were taking shape. The underground crews were busy on storm drainage, and subcontractor Mendocino Construction Company placed sub base on the sections of the Southbound lanes.

Granite Construction should finish the Willits Ridge Hwy. 101 realignment project by winter. The project stopped last year because of continuous rock slideouts. Caltrans engineers made some design changes and Foreman Paul Koich's crew began work around the first week of July.

The Caltrans Hwy. 20 passing lane job on the Mendocino-Lake County line also had some design changes. Operating Engineers Foreman Dan Cutter and his crew are laying back all of the slope with excavators and a slope-board dozer. The project has kept about five to eight operators busy for the last four months.

District 10 welcomes aboard two newly-signed companies that recently signed to Local 3: Terracon Pipeline, based out of Healdsburg, and AKEFF Construction Services located on the North coast.

Congratulations from District 10 — Rohnert Park

Operating Engineer Adam Holtzinger and wife Tresa had a baby boy, Andrew, on June 6 who weighed 6 pounds, 9 ounces at birth. The family resides in Petaluma, Calif. Operating Engineer Harold Holtzinger is the proud grandpa.

Local 3 member Dan Mancers and wife Susan had a baby boy, Austin, on Feb. 2 who weighed 8-pounds, 11 ounces at birth.

Operating Engineer Gregory Mawn married Rachel Young on June 15. They have two sons, Jacodie Young-Thompson and Talon Mawn. The family resides in Cotati, Calif.

Local 3 member Victor Flores and wife Irma had a baby girl, Sofia Flores, on May 22.

Congratulations to all! We wish you joyful memories in the years to come.
FROM FAIRFIELD

A job well done for Fairfield apprentices

Third-period Crane Apprentice Danny McCoy, Jr., oils on a 450-ton crane for Bragg Crane. Senior Coordinator Tammy Castillo said McCoy is an excellent apprentice. "He participates in all union activities and is a joy to work with," she said.

Fourth-period Crane Apprentice Leo Villegas operates a 35-ton hydro crane, placing a sculpture in San Francisco while employed by Bragg Crane. "Leo is an excellent apprentice," Castillo said. "He and his family attend all union functions, and he will be an asset as a journey-level operator."

FROM WYOMING & SOUTH DAKOTA

New Health and Welfare Plan now in effect

We are very grateful to all the participants in Wyoming and South Dakota for all their patience and understanding over the past 10 months as we put the new health and welfare plan into place. We are still working out some of the kinks, but overall it has been a very successful and smooth transaction.

One of the areas causing the most concern over the past few months is the vacation plan payout. With previous Trust Fund administrators, checks were cut twice a year and sent to eligible participants. However, as of Oct. 1, 2001, the Wyoming Operating Engineers Vacation and Holiday Pay Plan came into effect, and the payout changed. Vacation and holiday funds are issued during the November payout for work from March to August, and again during the May payout for work from September to February. If you would like a check sent to you, you will need to call the Wyoming Fringe Benefits Office at (877) 720-9100 and request a semi-annual payout card. The cards must be received by Oct. 1 for a November payout, and by April 1 for a May payout. If no card is received and you have more than $60 on account, the moneys will transfer into your account at the OE3 Credit Union at the end of November and May.

In addition to these two payouts, you are entitled to one emergency withdrawal during each accumulation period. Accumulation periods are hours from March to August, and hours from February to September. You may call the Fringe Benefits Office for more information on the emergency withdrawal cards.

The best way to access your vacation and holiday pay is to set up a monthly Credit Union transfer. In this case, as funds become available, they will transfer to your Credit Union account on the 10th day of each month. If you are a member of Local 3 in good standing, then you qualify for membership in the Credit Union. You must have a Credit Union account and a monthly transfer form on record. The phone number for the Credit Union is (800) 877-1444. However, if you are set up for the monthly transfer, you cannot use the emergency withdrawal as stated above.

If you have any questions regarding your health and welfare, pension, vacation and holiday pay, please call the Wyoming Fringe Benefits Office at (877) 720-9100 or the Trust Fund at (800) 251-5014.

Primary election endorsement

Local 3 endorses Dave Freudenthal as the primary election heats up. Local 3 and District 15 made an early commitment to endorse Dave Freudenthal, Democratic candidate for governor, for the 2002 election cycle. Freudenthal contacted District Rep. Travis Tweedy early in his campaign to get Local 3's support. It's time to elect a governor for the state of Wyoming who will stand up for working people. Wyoming workers know that they will win with Freudenthal. His economic plan is to create new jobs with higher wages and to raise wages for all of Wyoming's workers. He is committed to collecting the unpaid oil and gas business taxes to keep worker's taxes low, protecting our environment and helping to provide a better education for our children.

If Freudenthal is elected as governor, he will do whatever it takes to help Local 3 members. Local 3 staff and OE CAT activists have precinct walked to more than 1,500 homes and left information in Natrona, Converse, Carbon, Sweetwater, Campbell and Crook counties. We want to thank some of our members who went beyond the call of duty and helped us. Special thanks to Lloyd Welty, Dan Estes and his family, Steve Parker and his boys, and Justin Cloward.

We need everyone's help. Let's go to the polls and get Freudenthal elected so that everyone's standard of living will be raised.

Route 152 and Hwy. 25 improvements underway

The much sought after and eagerly anticipated Route 152 and Hwy. 25 improvements are well underway. Hwy. 25, the main connector from the city of Hollister to U.S. 101 is undergoing a much-needed shoulder widening and an addition of several turn pockets. The hope is that this will help the traffic flow in and out of Hollister. Hwy. 25 is known by a lot of local residents as a very dangerous stretch of blacktop. There have been about eight fatal accidents this year alone. Some locals think of this renovation project as just a temporary fix, and that Hwy. 25 still needs to be widened to two lanes in each direction. Who knows what the future will bring. Right now Granite Construction, Watsonville Branch is keeping at least eight of our operators employed.

Granite Construction soon begins working on the Route 152 improvement project a couple miles North of the Hwy. 25 exit. This project aims to:
- Improve the U.S. 101, Route 152 interchange, including a loop on-ramp for the Westbound Route 152 to Southbound U.S. 101, and realigning the Northbound U.S. 101 off-ramp;
- Install a traffic signal on Route 152 at the Northbound U.S. 101 off-ramp;
- Widen Route 152 from U.S. 101 through the Llagas Creek Bridge from two to four lanes;
- Align the existing Westside Transport, Inc. entrance with Gilroy Foods' East entrance, and install a traffic signal at this site;
- Improve the intersection at Route 152 and Ferguson Road;
- And build $1.5 million of retail space to coincide with the Route 152 U.S. 101 freeway expansion.

This project will be very beneficial to many of our union brothers and sisters. The capitol cost and project funding will be $23 million — $17.5 million from the 1996 Measure "B" funding, and $5.5 million from the city of Gilroy.

There is plenty of work to be had throughout the district. In North San Jose, Ryan Engineering lays the groundwork and infrastructure for a new power plant that will supply power to one of the country's largest computer servers when completed. Have a safe and great rest of the season.
Successful negotiations in the central valley

By Joe Santella, Business Representative

In these uncertain socioeconomic times, a small ray of light shines on the members of Oakdale, Calif. The Oakdale Irrigation District and the city of Oakdale concluded negotiations and have ratified their contracts. In the valley the big concerns are the ever-escalating costs of medical and pharmaceutical coverage and the always-ominous cost of living. Then when wage surveys, equity and parity requests and the rising costs in all benefit coverages are factored in, negotiations can become arduous affairs.

To tackle these common issues facing all Public Employee groups, the members in Oakdale resorted to inventive ways of addressing their concerns. On the issue of medical coverage for example, when confronted with the reality of cost sharing on the medical premium, the city employees of Oakdale elected to roll a portion of the city’s contribution into the salary line, and then have that and the employee portion withheld. Besides some tax advantages, the way it is set up provides an added benefit to the annual salary reported to PERS for retirement.

At the Oakdale Irrigation District, employees were confronted with a wage and benefit survey that had them below the median by as much as 30 percent or more. There the employees agreed to take small incremental increases over the life of the contract and agreed to look at schedule modifications as a means to hold down costs.

Another big issue that most bargaining units are confronting in negotiations are the new PERS enhanced-retirement formulas. Some employers are eager to explore these new options while many are not, citing an uncertain economy and concern over the large budget shortfalls at the state level and the impacts that may have on their own budget outlook.

The challenge that we in the Public Employee Division must be ever mindful of is that flexibility and an open mind will be tremendous aids as we negotiate in this uncertain economic climate. That type of willingness has served our members well in Oakdale and can work throughout our organization.
There is no ‘I’ in TEAM

The title of this article may sound familiar. Like many of you, I have participated in team sports most of my life and have coached many team sports such as basketball, football, baseball, soccer and softball. My two children have been involved in team sports since the age of five. The one consistent thing in my playing or coaching and the coaching my kids receive is that a team only succeeds if its members play and work together as a team. If the team is not cohesive and a couple players think they are bigger than the group as a whole, the team suffers. I have played on and coached teams with less talent than their opponents, but in the end, the victory over these opponents resulted from excellent and unselfish teamwork.

Team provides better service

Recently, among many other positive changes and improvements to the Public Employees Division, I implemented a teamwork concept in regards to business representatives. In the past, many members, agencies and associates were acquainted with and primarily dealt with only one representative. This worked fine except when that representative became ill, injured or retired. Generally the members, executive boards and stewards were then concerned about service and wondered who would be the new business representative. The implementation of the teamwork concept alleviates this concern and improves service to the members. Let me explain. Each unit will have a designated primary business representative and two assigned backup business representatives. All representatives will be required to stay familiar with all units they are assigned to, as well as the ones they serve as backup. Depending on the issue, we may have a business representative who specializes in it. Many of our business representatives are experts and may be more knowledgeable in these areas than your assigned primary representative. These experts would handle your case.

Local 3’s service is second to none

No other provider or specialty law firm provides this type of service. I know this because I am very familiar with specialty law firms as I once worked for one, and my association was represented by two others years ago during previous employment. Where the largest of the firms can provide a maximum of five attorneys and three-and-a-half labor representatives, the others can provide approximately three attorneys and one representative. This does not count the workers compensation or personal injury attorneys they have on staff who provide no help in a labor dispute. In contrast, Local 3 has 38 seasoned labor attorneys and 16 experienced business representatives. Our representatives have worked in the trenches as K-9 handlers, in public works, as linemen and mechanics, on patrol, as range masters, as training officers or background investigators, in water treatment, internal affairs, custody, retail, motors, DRS’s, stewards, detectives, clerks or association leaders. Since Local 3 has 16 business representatives, it provides a wealth of expertise and experience to choose from to service the members. In addition, our 38tery labor attorneys make us unmatched with the expertise and experience available to service our members.

How does this affect you?

In the next three to five months you will not just see and deal with your assigned primary representative, you instead will see a backup or specialized representative working alongside your primary representative. On some occasions you will see two or more reps at the same time handling or assisting in a critical incident, arbitration, internal affair, privatization, grievance or other issue. The team concept allows us not only to take advantage of the specific talent of our representatives’ expertise, but also to help pick up the ball when the assigned primary representative is temporarily swamped. This creates a more prepared and informed staff and membership.

Talented staff

The new teamwork concept only works if the team wants to participate. I have to say that the current Public Employee Division’s team of representatives and organizers is the most talented the division has seen. You can read about two new talented representatives in this issue of Public Employee News. As I stated in my article a few months ago, the Local 3 Public Employee Division is looking to advance and improve in several areas. We are not satisfied with keeping the standard — we want to set the standard! I believe that in the last five months we have already done just that. We will not sit on our laurels; I have more ideas in the bullshit. It is the hard work of the people in this division, the innovation, forethought and the continued support and leadership of Business Manager Don Doser and the Local 3 officers that have placed us back on top. There are a few who rumor or say otherwise as they try or say anything to obtain your business. Be sure to get informed as a team member to avoid falling prey to malcontents.

Lastly, although we have an all-star team of business representatives and organizers, we rely heavily on you, our talented team of members throughout Local 3. We rely on you to inform us of the inequities of the employer, or to stand up for your rights so we all can be heard. If you see an unfamiliar face with your usual representative, stop and say hi or attend a membership meeting you have been missing. You might find there is a new game in town — that game is Local 3, and we’re ready to play.

CEMA realignment negotiations completed

By Tom Starkey, Business Representative

CEMA recently concluded negotiations on salary realignments and several major reclassifications and special salary adjustments that impact more than 700 members within the CEMA bargaining unit with Santa Clara County.

All CEMA members will receive a 6 percent salary adjustment on Aug. 19. In addition, more than 450 members will receive salary realignments because of internal or external market comparison. Many of the realignments were in the 1-per cent range, but several classifications received adjustments between 8 percent and 12 percent. CEMA represented classifications in the pharmacy, and diagnostic imaging at Valley Medical Center received salary adjustments ranging between 15 percent and 17 percent because of continuing problems recruiting and retaining employees.

More than 250 members will receive salary adjustments because of major reclassifications and other realignments completed last year. These classifications are in the Health and Hospital Agency. These salary adjustments ranged from 2 percent to 12 percent with a majority getting salary increases in the 2 percent range.

Given the pending downturn of Santa Clara County’s budget, CEMA believes these adjustments continue to keep many middle managers adequately paid to perform their roles in county government.

Thank you to the many members who assisted with the negotiations that resulted in salary increases for our membership. Elaine Larson, Richard Simon, Keith Garvey, Delia Ho, Edna Segura, Terry Ota, Vickie Meyer, Barbara Lang, Pat Ericsson, Karen Bolding, Barbara Whittingham, Dan Loyd, Eunice Rojas, and Carlos Leglu.
Monterey County Deputy prevails through arbitration

By Don Dietrich, Business Representative

Monterey County Deputy Sheriff Joseph Palazzolo always went the extra mile to do a good job. He personally provided many pieces of equipment that he thought were necessary to be an effective public safety officer, things his department did not provide. Anyone in law enforcement knows what it's like to be a part of a team. Cameras, tape recorders, extra handcuffs, an extra flashlight—all at the officer's own expense.

One item Palazzolo provided was a 35mm camera. The department did not provide this item and we all know the value of pictures in cases like domestic violence disputes in which the victim later recants any physical injury.

But you know what they say, No good deed shall go unpunished. Palazzolo works in a small police department that calls the Sheriffs Department for assistance and backup because of its limited staff resources. This small department encourages good relations by extending the use of its facilities to deputies working in the area. It is the small department's common practice to lend equipment and supplies to other agencies.

In July of 2001, Palazzolo borrowed some 35mm film from the small department because the Monterey County Sheriffs Department was out of film. This is when the nightmare began.

Palazzolo then was placed on administrative leave accused of theft. He returned to work only to be served with a notice of a 30-hour suspension for misappropriation of property, and more specifically, the film.

On May 21, Attorney Alan Crowley from Van Bourg, Weinberg, Roger & Rosenfeld presented the case before Arbitrator Edward Scholtz on behalf of Operating Engineers Local 3. The hearing lasted two days.

On July 12 Scholtz reversed the notice of punitive action and recommended that Palazzolo be reimbursed for any and all lost compensation, including interest.

On July 12 the right thing occurred and that is what your union is all about.
Remember, the employer has the burden of two things in disciplinary matters:

1) It must establish just cause for taking punitive action. The employer needs to prove that you have done something wrong.

2) It must apply the appropriate level of corrective action based on the need to ensure that violations of workplace rules or policies do not occur again.

Local 3's professional business representatives are here to make sure your employers operate under these guidelines, and our attorneys are here to make sure unjust punishment is corrected.

In closing, I would like to thank Alan Crowley from Van Bourg, Weinberg, Roger & Rosenfeld. We are very fortunate to have the professional services of attorneys like Crowley to right the wrongs that occur. I would also like to commend Palazzolo who hung in there and prevailed. Union members need to stick up for what is right. It is the only way to keep employers from abusing employee rights.

Plumas County employees fired after reporting sexual harassment

By Chuck Smith, Business Representative

It's been a long spring and summer for two Plumas County employees who were fired after reporting what they believed to be sexual harassment of a third employee.

Binding arbitration was scheduled to conclude in early August and the employees, Tim Ball and Nancy Yeager, hoped to be reinstated sometime in September with full back pay. The two employees are represented at arbitration by Operating Engineers Local 3 and the Van Bourg law firm of Oakland.

Ball, the coordinator of the "Friday Night Live" youth drug and alcohol prevention program, and Yeager, a fiscal assistant, were fired in April by Alcohol and Drug Services Director Bob Minert after reporting the behavior of one of the male alcohol and drug counselors toward a female employee under Ball's supervision.

According to Ball, the female employee, then age 19, had complained that the male counselor "creeped her out," and that she pretended to be on the telephone when the counselor came to her office to avoid talking to him. On at least two occasions, Ball witnessed the male counselor "leering" at the female employee's backside.

On another occasion, Ball and the department's fiscal officer witnessed the female employee leave her chair and crouch down behind a desk when the male counselor walked down the hallway. "Don't let him see me," the fiscal officer quoted the woman as saying, "I don't like the way he looks at me."

The woman also complained about the male counselor to Yeager and other employees.

After Ball reported the behavior to his department head, Minert directed that he, Yeager and a third witness, counselor Carol Lee, put their concerns in writing. Upon receiving the complaints, he placed all three on administrative leave pending an investigation. Minert demanded a written statement from the fiscal officer but he was not disciplined.

Claiming that no sexual harassment took place and that the three were conspiring against the male counselor, Minert initiated disciplinary action. After Skelly hearings, Carol Lee was reinstated. Ball and Yeager, however, were fired and appealed under the binding arbitration language in the Memorandum of Understanding between Local 3 and Plumas County.

Minert, a former Los Angeles police officer with no training in alcohol and drug abuse prevention, was hired about a year ago, and according to an investigator from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, was given instructions by two county supervisors to get rid of Ball as soon as possible. Minert denied that he was given such instructions.

Minert said that when he interviewed the female who was the subject of the statements provided by the employees, she denied that any sexual harassment occurred. While the woman admitted the male counselor "creeped her out," she said there was no sexual harassment on his part and that Ball, Yeager and Lee were making things up.

Minert said that the three employees who filed the written complaints engaged in a criminal conspiracy against the male counselor. He cited as evidence the fact that all three used the term "leering" in their statements to describe the behavior of the male counselor toward the female employee.

The female, who was the subject of the alleged harassment, now has the job previously held by Ball.

The EEOC has issued right-to-sue letters to Ball, Yeager and Lee.
Veteran cop and union activist joins Public Employee Division

By Kurt Benfield, Director

I once again am pleased to announce an experienced new face joining the Public Employee Division team, Doug Gorman. The Public Employee Division is glad to have Doug Gorman on board. He started his career in law enforcement in 1976 for the City of Placentia. After moving around to places such as Casper, Wyo., Desert Hot Springs, San Diego and Bell Gardens, Calif., he finally settled in the city of Montebello. Gorman spent time in the mounted enforcement unit and in the gang unit, and has extensive experience as a K-9 Handler, a range-master and as a patrol and field training officer.

During his years of service, Gorman served as president, vice president and treasurer for various associations handling grievances and many other labor-related issues. When he retired from law enforcement, he followed his calling to union representation and became a labor representative for the California Organization of Police and Sheriffs. Gorman then joined Local 3 with the desire to spend more time with the front-line union members and to get involved on a much larger membership and political scale.

Gorman already has made an impact on many members of the San Jose office and looks forward to meeting and representing many more members.

Gorman lives in the San Jose area with his wife Sara, son Wyatt and daughter Taylor. He loves spending time with his family and enjoys training horses.

Take some time to talk to or say hi to Gorman at your next membership meeting or when stopping by the San Jose office.

Another new face in San Jose

By Kurt Benfield, Director

Joining Business Rep. Doug Gorman in San Jose is Robert "Bob" Highbaugh. Highbaugh is an 18-year veteran law enforcement officer of the Hayward Police Department. Highbaugh hailed from the Alameda County Sheriff's Department before moving to Hayward. He is a true union loyalist and has held several positions such as president, vice president, treasurer and director of various associations in the nine-plus years he has been actively involved in the union. Highbaugh has been extensively involved in contract negotiations, grievances and other labor issues. Highbaugh, like Gorman, is very familiar with the Internal Affairs and Skelly processes. During his time in law enforcement, he worked as a field training officer, school resource, on patrol and walking patrol and as a bicycle patrol officer. Highbaugh looks forward to working with and helping his fellow brothers and sisters in their union membership. Highbaugh lives in Hayward with his son Tom and enjoys golf, mountain biking and spending time with his son.

Please join me in welcoming Highbaugh to the Local 3 team and don’t be surprised to see this activist at your next meeting. Skelly or hearing.

Violence against union activists: It's the real thing

By Chuck Smith, Business Representative

From time to time, we are asked about the origins of unions and why they are necessary. Most modern-day union members have little knowledge of the rise of unionism and how corporate America used the courts, the cops, the Chambers of Commerce and hired thugs to attempt to destroy the union movement.

But once they read about the proliferation of child labor, 16-hour days, seven-day work weeks and mass murders of striking workers in the United States, our members develop a greater appreciation for all of the hard work that has gone into the union movement during the past 150 years.

There is a bumper sticker that reads: "Organized Labor, The Folks Who Brought You The Weekend." Unfortunately, such a standard American concept as the weekend had to be fought for with the blood of workers.

To develop an understanding of unionism in the United States, our members must, our entire team and the Caltrans Unit 12 must follow the reports out of Colombia where over the past 15 years, more than 4,000 union labor leaders have been slain, and 99 percent of those murders remain "unsolved." A majority of the murdered union activists were organizing and representing public employees in Colombia.

Similar atrocities occur in Guatemala, Indonesia, Haiti and other countries across the world where workers endure episodes of violence similar to those experienced by workers in the United States in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

There was a time in the United States when union organizers were beaten, tortured and murdered. Fortunately, the American criminal justice system today protects union organizers and union members to a greater degree, but they are still routinely threatened with violence.

Why? Because American businesses still do not want workers unionized. Neither do many department heads in local and state government. The fundamental notion of collective bargaining is a threat to their authority and wealth.

Our members often have said that American companies are no longer this way.

But ask the Colombians. Last year the United Steelworkers of America and the International Labor Rights Fund sued the Coca-Cola Company for allegedly ordering the murders of union leaders at a Coca-Cola subsidiary in Colombia.
